What do Williams grads do with their liberal arts majors? Just about anything. This visualization by math professor Satyan Devadoss and his students maps the areas of study and ultimate career paths of more than 15,000 Williams alumni, showing, he says, “You can study what you love and then go do what you want.”

What Williams alumni want to do, it turns out, is advance society, doing good as they do well. Starting salaries for our grads average $50,400; mid-career salaries, $111,000. Nearly 60 percent hold advanced degrees, and 100 percent are part of an extraordinary global network of 28,700 alumni eager to connect and help one another.
